

Arbitration Process Variations in Real Time – Nov. 11, 3:00 – 6:15 p.m.

You are hereby invited to join in seeking some truths about arbitration and decision-making by participating in an experiment with arbitration process variations, while earning CLE credit, of course!

On Wednesday, November 11, from 3:00 – 6:15, in Room 114 at the College of Law, we will conduct a “grand scale” arbitration, in which a single arbitration case presentation will be made to all attendees, sitting in various arbitrator configurations and with varying information and instructions. All will deliberate and render solo or panel decisions and awards, generating original Cincinnati data as to how arbitrator panel configurations and instruction variables impact the likelihood of liability and award amounts.

After your decision is done, program faculty John Van Winkle, John Cruze, and Marjorie Aaron will discuss differences in arbitration through court, under AAA rules, or CPR rules, what advocacy choices are best suited for arbitration, and when litigation or arbitration might better serve your client. The program will conclude with a presentation of current research on arbitral decision-making, results from a similar experiment, and preliminary analysis and insight from our experiment, based upon your data.

Refreshments will be served before and after the program; we very much hope you will join us!
